CHAPTER VII MENTAL REACTIONS The laws of moral nature answer to those of matter as face to face in a glass . . . The axioms of physics translate the laws of ethics. Thus: Reaction is equal to action. Emerson. IN the formulation of a new theory, child of one's own brain, one is confronted with many difficulties, not the least among them being that of making intelligible the language with which it has spoken at birth; a language quite clear to its parent, rendered so by the absence of any necessity for actual utterance, and above all for the reason that one has lived with it from its birth and become familiar with its every expression. The theory enunciated in the following chapters is the result of five years work, during which every step was proved, not only in my own...
